The people of PANDA are the ones Kipling had in mind. “If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you”. This presentation is from them to a world ruled by people who have failed to keep their heads and done a whole lot of blaming.

The members of PANDA don’t merely contribute scientific analysis and perspective. There are many who labour hard on our content generation and the operational logistics of supporting our extensive global network.

In March, PANDA's presentation "The UGLY Truth about the COVID-19 Lockdowns" went viral. After half a million views in a few days, it was still accelerating, being watched at a rate of 12,000 views per hour. Its contents were mostly based on the actual statements and publications of the WHO and CDC, and we used those to show that the received narrative of the Covid epidemic was false in all its key elements. Though there have been precisely zero criticisms of its factual content, YouTube censored that presentation, citing non-specific violations of its "community guidelines".

THE FALSE NARRATIVE BEHIND THE FEAR

A deadly novel virus is sweeping the planet
It's spread by droplets and fomites
Nobody is immune and there is no treatment
Asymptomatic people are major drivers of disease
PCR tests diagnose COVID
So we have to lock down and wear masks until everyone is vaccinated
Variants will haunt us forever
Long COVID and reinfections are of concern
Those who challenges this narrative are a danger

THE REALITY

A virus that presents high risk to few and negligible risk to most hit some regions. It's airborne, spreads by minute particles. Few are susceptible to severe disease. There are several available treatments. Asymptomatics are not major drivers of disease. Lockdowns and mask mandates, never recommended before, were tried. They haven't worked and caused great harm. Variants are not of concern. PCR test doesn't diagnose. Immunity is long lasting. The vulnerable were hurt instead of helped.

We are living in a world where our institutions of science and media have been co-opted in the maintenance of this false narrative. That narrative's main purpose is the creation and perpetuation of fear. This fear narrative has put the population into a fight or flight response so severe that flight is the only option. The behavioural science tools of trade have little to do with fighting a viral epidemic, and plenty to do with creating constant reminders of the presence of a deadly threat, even for people for whom the threat is in reality, not at all deadly. This is the antithesis of sound public health messaging, which should inform people accurately about their risk and not trying to drive disproportionate fear.

STIFLING OF DISSENT

If you're an antivaxxer and/or Covid denialist, you are either 1. extremely gullible & averse to science 2. utterly uninformed 3. a right wing conspiracy fanatic 4. crying out for help & attention or 5. all of the above. (Or just not very bright?)

Dissent, the hallmark of scientific progress, has been ruthlessly stifled. The woke army cancels and lies. Livelihoods of opposing scientists are threatened. They are bullied out of their positions, smeared as “conspiracy theorists”, “covid deniers” and “anti-vaxxers”.

While PANDA has been at pains to explain that this arises more from a clash of ideologies, or as Thomas Sowell would put it, a conflict of visions, the ubiquitous conspiracy theorist slur enables an amusing joke. What's the difference between a conspiracy theory and a fact? Six months.

Hi Tony,

Thanks for sharing. Yes, I saw this earlier today and both Eddie and myself are actually quoted in it. It's a great article, but the problem is that our phylogenetic analyses aren't able to answer whether the sequences are unusual at individual residues, except if they are completely off. On a phylogenetic tree the virus looks totally normal and the close clustering with bats suggest that bats serve as the reservoir. The unusual features of the virus make up a really small part of the genome (<0.1%) so one has to look really closely at all the sequences to see that some of the features (potentially) look engineered.

The recent exemplifier of this situation was the Faucigate email release. Among many embarrassments, few of which have been reported by a fawning media, these contained the revelation that Fauci's closest scientific advisors had written to him pointing out that the viral genome exhibited many features consistent with a laboratory origin. Much of the ensuing exchange was redacted, but we can see Fauci hastily convening a conference call, and within days of that one of those scientists, Kristian Andersen, who was a beneficiary of some serious funding from Fauci, was out on social media telling the world exactly the opposite of what those scientists actually believed. As the mails were released, he deleted his incriminating posts, claiming they'd been deleted by Twitter, and upon being challenged with screen shots of them, deleted his entire Twitter account. Talk about guilty.

Former CDC chief says "most likely" cause of coronavirus is that it "escaped" from a lab

BY AUDREY MCNAMARA

UPDATED ON: MARCH 27, 2021 / 11:20 PM / CBS NEWS

Dr. Robert Redfield, the former director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, told CNN he believes the coronavirus originally escaped from a lab. But it's too early to know for sure and investigators are still looking for evidence.

Redfield stressed he was not implying "intentional release."

For more than a year, legacy had media curated the lie that lab origin was a conspiracy theory, until, just before the release of the Fauci emails, first Robert Redfield, Fauci's close colleague and former head of the US FDA, broke ranks, followed by Fauci himself. Fauci appeared to have perjured himself in congressional testimony. Yet even after all of this, the media narrative was "move on, nothing to see here".

World Health Organization

The virus can also spread in poorly ventilated and/or crowded indoor settings, where people tend to spend longer periods of time. This is because aerosols remain suspended in the air or travel farther than 1 metre (long-range).

The smallest very fine droplets, and aerosol particles formed when these fine droplets rapidly dry, are small enough that they can remain suspended in the air for minutes to hours.

PANDA
PANDEMICS - DATA & ANALYTICS

This was not the only example of a fact described as a conspiracy theory. In June of last year, when PANDA noted that neither lockdown nor mask mandate efficacy were evident in the data, and that studies supporting them were riddled with fundamental flaws, we proposed that dissident scientists arguing for airborne aerosols as the primary driver of spread were probably right, and that the “droplet and fomite” dogma of the WHO couldn’t be. That too was described as a conspiracy theory, yet, in recent weeks, without any announcement or explanation, both the WHO and the CDC quietly added aerosols to the top of their lists of transmission mechanisms.

They did this without even a nod in the direction of the obvious implication—that the whole clown show of social distancing, cloth masks, stickers and plexiglass, was pointless. What was perhaps the biggest news event of the entire pandemic was, again, almost completely ignored by the media. “Nothing to see here”.

PANDA covered another foundational lie, asymptomatic transmission as a driver of the disease epidemic, in the “UGLY Truth” presentation. Taking this together with airborne aerosol spread, the case for lockdowns, social distancing and mask mandates is non-existent, and the lack of evidence that we found for their effectiveness is wholly unsurprising. There should be no media house on the planet doing anything other than shouting “scandal!” at the top of their voices, yet the silence is deafening.

This is only a glimpse of these problems. Unpacking them all in their full depth and breadth would take weeks, and we only have 30 minutes. Having watched “The UGLY Truth” presentation and listened to this, the question that is surely on your minds is “Why?”

This question has caused many who see these things to go quite mad, conjuring up crazy embellishments and imagining smoke-filled rooms of Illuminati-like plotters, intent on global depopulation or some such.

These were far from the only major stories ignored by legacy media and suppressed by social media platforms.

And the one that we all find creepiest of all. Look at the imagery here. Of course, our observation that this appeared to be deliberate risk distortion earned us another “conspiracy theorist” label.

But evidence that we were correct emerged early on, in Germany, when the mainstream “Welt” newspaper published a major expose of a classified document, dubbed the “Panic Papers”. The investigations included details of members agreeing to divert their discussions about how to communicate completely trumped up predictions for the purpose of maximising fear to their private email addresses. They knew they were doing something wrong and did not want to be found out.

Members of the Scientific Pandemic Influenza Group on Behaviour (SPI-B) expressed regret about the tactics in a new book about the role of psychology in the Government's Covid-19 response.

SPI-B warned in March last year that ministers needed to increase "the perceived level of personal threat" from Covid-19 because "a substantial number of people still do not feel sufficiently personally threatened". Gavin Morgan, a psychologist on the team, said: "Clearly, using fear as a means of control is not ethical. Using fear smacks of totalitarianism. It's not an ethical stance for any modern government. By nature I am an optimistic person, but all this has given me a more pessimistic view of people." "Masks do more harm than good & the decision to mandate them for healthy people was introduced as a psychological control method."

"Children are unlikely to suffer from the epidemic":
Wrong. Children are easily infected, even with exit restrictions, e.g. from the neighbours' children. When they infect their parents and one of them dies in agony at home and they feel they are to blame for forgetting to wash their hands after playing, for example, it is the most terrible thing a child will ever experience.'

Further revelations emerged elsewhere. A member of the UK SAGE's behavioural science unit revealed how the unit had told ministers that "a substantial number of people still do not feel sufficiently personally threatened". Gavin Morgan, a psychologist on the team, said: "Clearly, using fear as a means of control is not ethical. Using fear smacks of totalitarianism. It's not an ethical stance for any modern government. By nature I am an optimistic person, but all this has given me a more pessimistic view of people." It also emerged that the unit knew that masks did more harm than good & that the decision to mandate them for healthy people was introduced as a psychological control method."

IRELAND'S ISAG

ISAG members were instructed to “review and internalise” instructions to “look for ways to increase insecurity, anxiety, and uncertainty”, and to “go after people and not institutions” because “people hurt faster than institutions.”

Members, many of whom are regular guests in Irish media, were told that they could count on “imagination” to “dream up many more consequences” than they themselves as “the threat is usually more terrifying than the thing itself.”

because they convey a message of ‘solidarity’. In other words, there is a behavioural science ‘reason’ for wearing masks, to increase a sense of collectivism. This is a feeling favoured by the psychologists that is entirely unrelated to the scientific evidence regarding transmission. Essentially, they want us to feel like we are ‘in it together’.

If you have never read this Spiegel report about the 2009 H1N1 hoax perpetrated by vaccine manufacturers in collusion with the WHO, then do so. A very sinister aspect of this episode was that they came for him in advance of the Covid policy reaction, for example, with changes to his Wikipedia entry that painted him as some kind of asylum inmate.

How is the false narrative of Covid perpetuated with such ruthless efficiency? The chief enabler of all of this is centralisation of power. A handful of media companies control almost all outlets, and agencies such as ANP and Project Syndicate can cause any story, true or false, to be propagated around the world across all mediums, and in a flash.

Fact check: Coronavirus not man-made or engineered but its origin remains unclear

And there's scientific consensus that SARS-CoV-2, or COVID-19, is not man-made.

More than two dozen public health experts issued a statement to The Lancet in February to "strongly condemn conspiracy theories suggesting that COVID-19 does not have a natural origin."

They continued: "Scientists from multiple countries have published and analysed genomes of the causative agent, severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2), and they overwhelmingly conclude that this coronavirus originated in wildlife, as have so many other emerging pathogens."

And an article published in Nature Medicine in March found that the genetic makeup of the virus that causes COVID-19 indicates that it has not been altered by humans. "We do not believe that any type of laboratory-based scenario is plausible," its authors wrote, instead concluding that the virus likely originated from bats, like SARS-CoV.

The story gets worse, as the self-styled “fact-checking” organisations, which in the main act to attack dissenting voices, are funded by the very same people. It is comical, macabre, to read the sanctimonious columns of those fact-checkers after the passing of a few months. We see them, like the Inquisition insisting that the world was flat, proclaiming zoonotic origin as “settled science”, because dozens of scientists said so in a journal, and that was that. A handful of organisations headed by some very powerful people have also infiltrated the vast majority of our public health institutions, with funding that is modest to them but very significant for the scientists they seek to compromise. The principal ones are the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, their related entities, the WHO and GAVI (the vaccine alliance) the CDC and the big pharma companies. It is simply not possible for any of the scientists in organisations funded by this crew to hold a dissenting opinion, let alone to utter one. At pain of career and financial ruin, most rationalize their way into supporting the false narrative. The few who don't join PANDA as cryptic members. Media's inclination to see nothing is inexcusable. PANDA connections have made this available in easy-to access visualizations with drill-downs to all the detail.

How far does this go? Well, one of the many challenges that PANDA had to face this past year involved a series of professional conduct complaints filed at the Actuarial Society of South Africa against me and another actuary and PANDA member, Peter Castleden. The complaints carried no water, and were ultimately withdrawn after a process that lasted a year and served mainly, and probably deliberately, to consume PANDA's resources. The key complainant emanated from the CEO of an actuarial consulting firm, Percept, who had been centrally involved in the massively overwrought Covid model of the Society. That model, way wrong even on the day it was published, had quite curiously aligned with the similarly overwrought models of the other members of the coronavirus modelling consortium. But buried in the filings of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation for 2020 lay a surprising disclosure.

The foundation had bestowed a grant upon Percept to the tune of $1.5m. What a coincidence! What was this foundation doing granting money to a small for-profit actuarial firm in South Africa, and to no other ones?

The rest of that filing blasts a broad swathe through the public health institutions of nearly every country, stitching up every notable university, NGO and agency that has ever been given significant media attention on Covid. Government and the public could be told anything about Covid, as long as what it was told conformed with what Bill Gates wanted them to hear. In studying the reach of that arm, we have found ourselves unable to identify a single prominent scientist who was not tainted by this brush.

So the Covid narrative is false and by corraling media and public health institutions, the creators of that false narrative entrenched it most firmly, at great and ongoing cost to the country and its citizens. And this story has been repeated in country after country, all around the world.

I have provided you with only a glimpse of these problems. Unpacking them all in their full depth and breadth would take weeks, and we only have 30 minutes. Having watched “The UGLY Truth” presentation and listened to this, the question that is surely on your minds is “Why?”

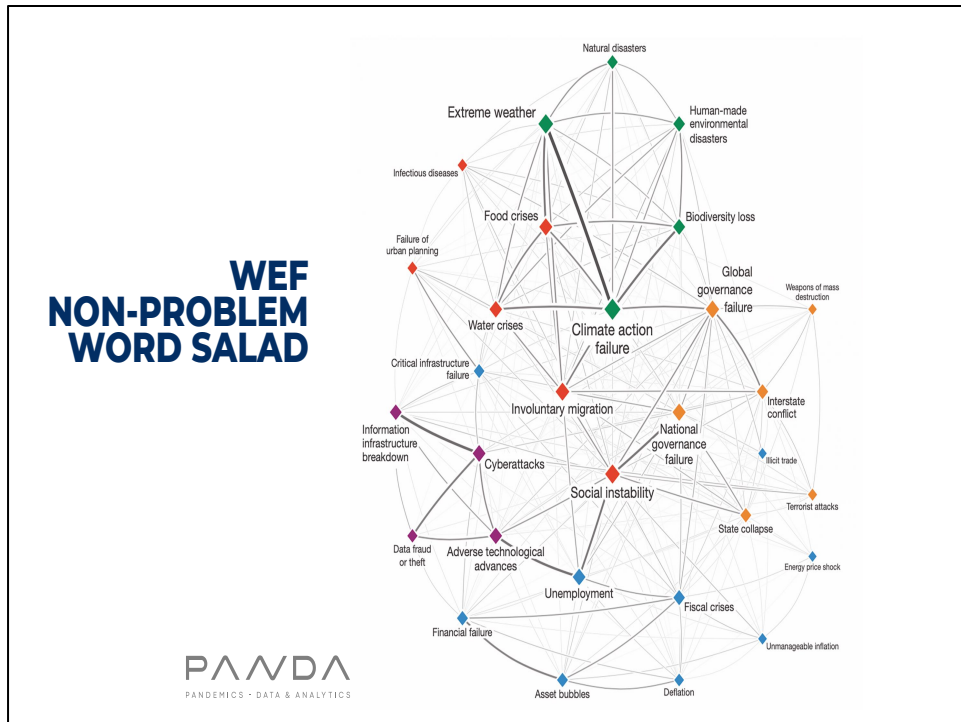

This question has caused many who see these things to go quite mad, conjuring up crazy embellishments and imagining smoke-filled rooms of Illuminati-like plotters, intent on global depopulation or some such.

We believe that the “why” question is best approached through the lens of ideology. In our view of the world, the battle lines have been drawn. The enemy we face is not a new one. What Gates, Soros and any number of super national organisations—the WHO, the World Economic Forum, the Atlantic Council, the Bilderberg Club, Common Purpose and many others represent, is what the great economist I mentioned earlier, Thomas Sowell, described as the “unconstrained vision”. Like Stalin, they conceive of human society as a system that they, by applying their technological vision, can control and manage towards a better outcome.

Visit the WEF's website and what you will encounter is a string of non-problems they have largely invented or fabricated, and to which they admit only centralist solutions. Such men would bring forth a shiny new world order, a great reset, a fourth industrial revolution, a build back better. They routinely express a close affinity for the Chinese Communist Party's methods, its surveillance of citizens, its social credit systems and its authoritarian ways. This would be enabled by control of the human population--a population tagged, app'd, even chipped and biologically monitored, affording them the capacity to nudge, prohibit or compel behaviour, even speech.

This kind of technocratic vision has many antecedents. I mentioned Stalin, but you could just as easily consider the Anglo-American banking cabal who funded Hitler and Mussolini. Indeed, you can pick almost any time in human history and find an extractive, oppressive elite obliterating all opposition, and with it, all potential for knowledge growth and progress of any sort at all. For the only source of knowledge growth, the constant cycling of conjecture and criticism in the search for better explanations, requires freedom of expression and preservation of local agency. Almost everyone in history died in a society that looked, from a technological perspective, very much like the one into which they had been born. Stasis is the rule, not the exception, precisely because local agency has seldom been achieved.

PROPORTION OF PEOPLE LIVING IN EXTREME POVERTY

PANDA
PANDEMICS - DATA & ANALYTICS

OPEN SCIENCE. HUMAN AGENCY. COURAGEOUS SOCIETIES.

For tiny fractions of human history there have been periods where the oppressive power and ossifying tendencies of hierarchies have been moderated. Democracy moderated one dollar one vote, with one man one vote, with generally salubrious outcomes. Democracy's current iteration took half a millennium to emerge from the spark ignited by Magna Carta. But when it did emerge it was extremely fecund. Decentralisation and diffusion of power unleashed the infinite potential of evolutionary knowledge growth. Poverty plummeted and lifespans increased.

Today's technocrats advance an agenda that inherits from its forebears a pronounced Malthusian strain that would terminate this fecundity, restoring stasis and drudgery. According to them, man is a mere passenger on Spaceship Earth. Magna Carta was a mistake and should be replaced by a Terra Carta, asserting the rights of the planet over man. Economic growth is a bad thing, they say, and we must get used to getting by with what we have, or perhaps with less. The only way they see to achieving this is to put the decision as to who gets what into the hands of a global elite; an elite which will do us all a favour, by extinguishing the Enlightenment in favour of a new Dark Ages.

And so what we have is an ideological clash—not a new one, but one that is more salient than it has ever been before. On the one hand, elites of the unconstrained vision, to whom it is in their capacity to systematise and regulate the affairs of men, and on the other, the wiser, more humble folk, who understand that society is complex, and improvements to it best made locally, by the scientific and evolutionary process of trial and error.

This contrast was wonderfully illustrated by one of the strangest documents I have ever read. In fact, when it was first brought to my attention, I suspected I was the victim of a prank. Researchers at the illustrious MIT infiltrated several lockdown skeptic organisations, one of which appears to have been PANDA.

"The groups we studied believe that science is a process, and not an institution."

"anti-maskers value unmediated access to information and privilege personal research ...over "expert interpretations", ..., individual initiative and ingenuity, trusting scientific analysis only insofar as they can replicate it themselves by accessing and manipulating the data firsthand."

"They are highly reflexive about the inherently biased nature of any analysis, and resent what they view as the arrogant self-righteousness of scientific elites."

"We argue that anti-maskers' deep story draws from similar wells of resentment, but adds a particular emphasis on the usurpation of scientific knowledge by a paternalistic, condescending elite that expects intellectual subservience rather than critical thinking from the public."

"Most fundamentally," they said, "the groups we studied believe that science is a process, and not an institution." They correctly saw that we "value unmediated access to information and privilege personal research and direct reading over "expert" interpretations." "Its members value individual initiative and ingenuity, trusting scientific analysis only insofar as they can replicate it themselves by accessing and manipulating the data firsthand." They were surprised to find that "These individuals as a whole are extremely willing to help others who have trouble interpreting graphs with multiple forms of clarification: by helping people find the original sources so that they can replicate the analysis themselves, by referencing other reputable studies..." "Data literacy is a quintessential criterion for membership within the community they have created."

This vignette paints a picture of two startlingly different perceptions of science.

On the one hand we have appeals to “The Science™” ....

On the other we have our understanding of science as a process ...

If you recognise in the former conception, “The Science™”, traits prevalent in the philosophies of post-modernism, critical theory and wokeism, then you have the measure of it. And the subsidiary concepts of these self-refuting doctrines, such as cancel culture and safety culture are also everywhere in evidence.

It is important to understand that the corruption of science in this fashion is a decades-long process. In particular, the health sciences have been a chief victim. And it has been encroached upon from the other side of the political spectrum too. In the Reagan era, two shameful decisions were made. The one was to void liability for vaccine manufacturers, thus distorting the incentives they faced and paving the way for them falsely to present their products as the be all and end all of public health. The other was to permit those manufacturers, rather than regulators, to conduct the trials of their products. Over time, the effective oversight of those trials diminished, to the point of sheer perversion. It is now considered completely unexceptional for the regulators to be given grants and cushy positions by the owners of those manufacturers as they dispense their very modest oversight roles.

Peter Doshi: Pfizer and Moderna's "95% effective" vaccines—we need more details and the raw data

January 4, 2021

On 5 February 2021 we published a clarification to this piece. It is available here.

Five weeks ago, when I raised questions about the results of Pfizer's and Moderna's covid-19 vaccine trials, all that was in the public domain were the study protocols and a few press releases. Today, two journal publications and around 400 pages of summary data are available in the form of multiple reports presented by and to the FDA prior to the agency's emergency authorization of each company's mRNA vaccine. While some of the additional details are reassuring, some are not. Here I outline new concerns about the trustworthiness and meaningfulness of the reported efficacy results.

Their insouciance has become quite brazen. When an editor of the BMJ raised most serious concerns about anomalies in the Pfizer Biontech trial, his questions were neither taken up by controlled legacy media, nor responded to by the manufacturer. An unprecedented roll-out has taken place without even the slightest of efforts to address the issues.

Everywhere the cry has gone out for a jab in every arm, even though there is no logic in this. Deaths could be reduced to minor levels simply by vaccinating the 5 or 10% of the population that is both vulnerable and not part of the substantial infected and recovered group. Natural immunity is falsely presented as either feeble or short-lived, and the negligible risk posed by Covid to the young, and the risk posed by vaccines to them are downplayed.

Once again, the corruption of the WHO by corporate interests has been on full display, most scandalously in their attempt to revise the definition of herd immunity to exclude the contribution of those with pre-existing or natural immunity. This had the effect of justifying the establishment of goals of near-universal vaccination, a situation that satisfies not only the bottom line of Big Pharma, but the surveillance and control ambitions of the technocracy and the desire of governments for a face-saving step-down strategy from an overwrought and massively destructive policy response.

"Children and young people do not benefit from the COVID-19 vaccine as their risk from the disease is almost nil. Mass vaccination and vaccine trials on healthy children are therefore unethical."

Once again, we see the behavioural scientists at work in government and industry advertising. This trajectory suits not only the pockets of manufacturers, but the ambitions of technocrats who aspire to a surveillance state built upon the platform of immunity passports, and governments in search of a face-saving de-escalation of what they now are aware were overwrought and massively destructive responses.
